The Bartine Fund.

There was quite a large addition to the Bartine Fund yesterday. Notwithstanding the hard times the people are responding well. Yesterday $135 was telegraphed to Mr. Bartine in Washington. There ought to be at least $100 more raised by Saturday night, and this will be sufficient.

Cause of Fair's Death.

A great many people who do not want to be cured of the liquor habit say they fear the treatment as it kills some people, and cite the son of Senator Fair as an example.

Recently Senator Fair wrote to Dr. Sussdorf the following.

San Francisco, Cal., July 25, '93.
Dr. G. E. Sussdorf, President of the Keeley Institute, Carson City, Nevada; DEAR SIR:—Replying to your letter of yesterday, I beg to say that after the death of my son, James G. Fair, three prominent physicians of this city, at my request, held an autopsy on his body. The result of that autopsy was to show the young man died of fatty degeneration of the heart, and that Dr. Keeley's treatment of his case was in no way responsible for his death.

Yours truly,
JAMES G. FAIR.

DIED.

In this city Aug. 9, 1893, John Foley, aged 47 years, and a native of Ireland.

The funeral will take place at 4:30 today from his late residence. Friends and acquaintances are invited.

Frank Bieten is now the agent for the celebrated Victor bicycles, which he sells for cash on the installment plan. Opposite.

ALL SORTS.

The silver congress caucused yesterday.

After the President's anti-silver message silver went up.

Cleveland's message was well received—all over England.

Silver is getting scarce and was quoted yesterday at 75 as against 72 last Monday.

Miss Clara Richardson who has been visiting at the Mound House passed through to her home at Reno last night.

Mrs. John Heritage and son departed on last evening's train for a trip through the East, and will visit Chicago on their way home.

Two millions in gold has been shipped away from the mint in this city inside of three days. It goes to the Assistant Treasurer of the U. S. in New York.

The latest fad of the women in New York is to wear men's straw hats, and to lift them in saluting the men just as the men do in saluting the women. Come and occupy the breeches, please.

There is to be another war talk in Virginia City on Friday over the wages situation. So far the representatives of the two sides have not met. Under the circumstances a free conference committee would seem to be in order.

The daily average shipments of fruit over the Central Pacific for some weeks past has been between fifty and sixty carloads. The shipments for the season from Sacramento east aggregate 1,550 carloads, an increase of 450 carloads over the same period last year. Fruit growers are unable to sell to the home canneries this year and are sending as much as they can to eastern markets.

Several parties who are interested in the mines at White Horse are talking of erecting a two stamp mill on the river near Wadsworth for the purpose of making a practical test of the ore in that district. They argue that this method would be cheaper and more satisfactory than shipping the ore in large quantities. Several mills of this character in Six Mile canyon can be had at small cost.

A Silver Man's Query.

ED. APPEAL:—In the list of contributors to the fund for defraying the expenses of our delegate to the Bi-Metallic convention and to Washington, there are several names conspicuous by their absence, prominent among which are State officers, whose salaries, if I am correctly informed, amount to the handsome sum of $6,000 per year.

Is it possible that our interests in this matter are not theirs also?

If such be the case, it is a sad commentary, and the sooner we get men filling those offices, whose interests are in harmony with ours the better. There are others also, who are drawing good salaries from the State, whose names do not appear on the list.

There are also several business men in the county, whose names are not on the list, who can well afford to donate from five to ten dollars at least. Can you tell me what's the matter.

A FRIEND OF SILVER.

[Can't tell. ED. APPEAL.]

Died of Heart Disease.

Yesterday morning John Foley, who has been in the V. & T. R. R., was found dead in his room.

His daughter who went in the morning to wake him, found him on the floor dead.

His wife who was in San Francisco was telegraphed for, and will arrive this morning.

Dr. Guinan found it a case of heart failure, and the Coroner's Jury so found.

He leaves a wife and four daughters; one Miss Ella Foley, being a teacher in the North Ward school.

He was a native of Ireland and 47 years of age and leaves many friends in Carson.

To Fight for a Purse of $500.

The Grass Valley Union says: Tom C. Johnson of Marysville has been matched to fight James Fell of Virginia City, for a purse of $500. The date for the fight has not yet been set but it will probably take place at Carson some time in the near future.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, Aug. 4, 1893.

Mr. Cleveland and Secretaries Carlisle and Lamont will return to Washington tomorrow, and it is understood that they will bring with them a definite financial policy. One is certainly needed by their party for a more utterly bewildered crowd than the democratic Congressmen are has never been seen in Washington. Nine-tenths of them openly acknowledge that they are groping in the dark, and haven't the slightest idea of what they are going to do, or even of what they want to do.

Senator Teller has some very decided opinions on the situation, and he does not hesitate to express them. He does not believe that Congress can do anything to relieve the financial condition, and says the repeal of the Sherman law, even if it can be accomplished, will do no good. He says the people are not afraid of our currency, but of investments, and cites as proof that money is being hoarded, whereas if it were the currency they are afraid of they would be investing it in land and other stable property instead of piling it up in safe deposit vaults or putting it away in their houses.

Judging from the talk of Congressmen some of the wildest financial theories ever heard of will be sprung on the country as soon as the Congressional machine gets into working order.

The administration determined sometime ago that it would be unwise to have its pension policy voted upon by Congress, and, in accordance with that determination, word has been passed to the democratic Congressmen as they arrived to let the pension laws alone and leave to the executive branch of the government the business of reducing the number of pensioners by its construction of present laws, rather than take the chance of having proposed amendments defeated. But there are some vigorous kickers among the democrats. Such men as Representatives Tarsney, of Mo., Sayers, of Texas, and Erlos, of Tennessee, are full to the neck of schemes to reduce the amount paid for pensions by amending the present laws, and unless they change their minds will introduce them in the House, notwithstanding the expressed wishes of the administration. The republicans will be glad to get an opportunity to put the democrats in Congress on record on the pension policy of the administration and will lose no opportunity to get a vote upon any bill that promises to have that result.

Senator Gorman spent the larger portion of this week at the capitol, but he was much more intent upon capturing the lion's share of the places under the new Democratic officials of the Senate, who will assume office Monday, in accordance with the agreement under which they were elected at the March extra session of the Senate, than upon helping his party to formulate a financial program. One of his personal friends said of him once: "Gorman's idea of the greatest statesman is, the man who can get the best and the largest number of offices for those who do his political work." He isn't the only man in Congress, by a large number, who appears to have adopted that definition of statesmanship, but he is credited with getting more small offices than any other single Democrat.

There has been considerable adverse comment on the appointment of Chas. B. Morton, of Maine, to be Fourth Auditor of the Treasury, which was made this week, and it has not all come from Republicans. Morton was instrumental in making the scandalous attack upon Mr. and Mrs. Blaine during the campaign of '84, and was charged with chipping the date of death and birth from the tombstone of Mr. Blaine's eldest child, in the cemetery at Augusta, Maine, in order that a doubt might be cast upon the legitimacy of the child.

Senator Gorman threw a bomb into the camp of the free trade democrats this week by saying in the most positive terms that no new tariff bill would be passed by this congress, because of the opposition of the business interests of the country, and that what revision of the McKinley law was done must be of a very conservative nature. Mr. Gorman seldom expresses a public opinion without a purpose, and there is reason to believe that his purpose in expressing this opinion at this time is to serve notice on the democratic free traders in the House that it is useless for them to send a free trade bill to the Senate, because there will be enough democratic Senators, added to the solid republican vote, to prevent its passage.

ORGANIZE.

Ringling Appeal of General Paul Vandervoort to The People.

General Paul Vandervoort, the commander of the Industrial Legion and the "Storm King" orator, has issued an earnest appeal to the People's party to organize into Industrial Legions and armed with the ballots of freemen, be prepared to meet the foes of industrial progress and the sovereignty of the people at Thermopylae of civil liberty. He concludes his address as follows:

This party has no room for traitors, no time for dissension no use for selfseeking prates, who wish to use it for selfish ends. It will spurn a boodler with contempt; it is a party based on the desires and hopes of millions. It will cling to the Omaha platform. It will not be bartered and sold. It will never fuse or be devoured by either of the old parties. It will nominate candidates who are its true members, and it will not go outside its line to trade with the enemy, or seek some political god, that has been hidden in the underbrush.

If you wish to win the battle, organize. If you wish to redeem your homes, organize. If you wish your children to be happy, organize. If you wish to educate them, organize. If you wish plenty in your homes, organize. If you wish to insure a fair ballot and honest count, organize. If you wish to be clad in decent raiment, blessed with abundant employment, organize. If you wish to defeat Wall street, annihilate Grover Cleveland and his trusty cabinet, overthrow John Sherman, exterminate McKinley, throw a bomb shell at Rothschild, wipe up the banks of issue, restore the radiant silver, employ the homeless, start up factories, re-open mines, raise the price of cotton and wheat, and all products, raise the price of labor and employ all seeking work, organize the Legion in every precinct, town and city throughout the union now.

PAUL VANDERVOORT.
Omaha, Neb., July 12th, 1893.

Why is This.

Yesterday Frank Douglas of Reno, Seth Longabangh of Empire, Will Woodbury of Empire, Will Doane of Carson and Miss Garrard of Carson, left for Napa college, California, to attend during the ensuing term. Last week Chris Diehl of Winnemucca and Frank Short of Glenbrook left to attend the college, and others, so the Journal is informed, are to follow later.

Why is this? We have a state university here which ought to be at least the equal of Napa as an educational institution in every respect. Would it be out of place for the regents of the university to inquire why so many Nevadans prefer Napa college to the university of their own state?—Journal.

It is because the State University is not under proper management, the professors pay too much attention to bicycles and lawn tennis. There is sad need of new blood in the faculty.

West Point Applicants.

The young men who are being examined for the West Point cadetship in this State are F. C. Frey, aged 21, a native of Washoe County; George Bliss, aged 18, a native of Eureka; Albert Giran, a native of Indiana, aged 18; Robert Beatty, aged 17, a native of San Francisco and a resident of Reno; H. Walters, aged 18, a native of Virginia city; and F. C. Batterly, aged 20, a native of Gold Hill. All are residents of Nevada, which is one of the necessary qualifications.

They have not been examined physically, but as all of them are stalwart, healthy looking young fellows they will probably bear inspection. The military regulations require that they shall be physically perfect, as well as proficient in the several educational branches taught in the public schools.
